Again last night, as on Thursday night, the men of Whitestone, L. L. were furious by excited; again they gathered on the street corners, inflamed their passions with drink in the saloons, and openly threatened lynching—lynching two negres here in the North, here in the Greater New York.

Again the good priest, Father O'Hare, reasoned with the infuriated men, counselled proce, or or ged obediences to law. Finally for the good priest, father O'Hare, reasoned with the infuriated men, counselled proce, or or ged obediences to law. Finally is in the throes of an impending race war. As has been told in the Journal, the assaulting of a white woman, Mrs. Atwell, by 8rb vanus Johnson, a negro, on the outskirts of this city, is the cause. One white man, William Gardner, has been killed, and several others on both sides wounded.

The trouble has been brewing since Coionel C. B. Pendleton arose in court yes.

If a Republican has identified himself with any organ-found behind a row of settoes, crowded methods of the Citizens' Union and elicited against each other in a corner of a small reemendous applause. Mr. Quigg said in room off the main hall, several packages done up in brown paper. He opened one carefully and saw that it contained cotton, Continuing his cleaning, he found a large sugar barrel, filled with cotton and covered with a piece of zinc, in a closet, behind a stove and a stack of brooms and mops. Sherdryck says that he is quite confident the cotton was not there the night before when he locked up the place.

He called in Patrolman White and showed him the cotton. "Stolen goods," said the policeman, Then he was struck by something curious about the stuff. He took a little in his fingers, struck a match, touched the cotton, and there was a flash that scorched his face and mustache. He and the junitor rushed from the room and went down the stairway several steps at a time. Inspector Murray, of the Bureau of Com-bustibles, was notified. He took a look at the stuff and prenounced it to be highly explosive gun cotton. It was taken to Fire Department Headquayters. Nobody that ought to know seems to have any idea how the cotton got into the synnagogue.
